MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

THE WEEK'S ENTERTAINMENTS.

THE EMPIRE.

AFTER THE OPERA.

If one's taste inclines towards brief dramatic thrillers one should not fail to witness the Grand Guignol play, which, by arrangement, is presented at the Empire. It is an adaptation by Miss Norah Keith, of "Après L'Opéra," and into three brief episodes (the whole occupies but a half an hour) are crowded the horrors of the midnight bazaar and murder by strangulation. In the French original, suicide provides an additional thrill, but the adaptor has seen fit to alter the ending, and thus omit one of the shocks.

Lady Lulu Devas is escorted home from the opera by her husband and lover. A telegram awaiting the former necessitates an instant journey, so as to remain after the husband's departure. Their tête-à-tête in her ladyship's boudoir is interrupted by a noise, and thinking it is the husband returning, the lover escapes by the balcony just as a masked burglar enters by the door. A moment after the intruder has strangled Lady Lulu and stolen her jewels. Then we are shown the escaping lover as he drops from the balcony into the arms of a policeman, who, joined immediately by his husband, joins immediately by his husband, who, missing the burglar, has returned. This, of course, brings a quick sense of fear. If the footstep heard in the boudoir was not the husband's, whose was it? Together the two men re-enter the house, and as they reach the boudoir the burglar slips into hiding. Maddened with jealousy and revenge, the husband charges the burglar with murder, to which—knowing he had given previously to the lover some notes in one of his wife's envelopes, for the purpose of backing a horse—he adds the charge of robbery. The burglar is discovered, however, and then the revengeful husband whips out a revolver and fires, but the shot misses its mark.

"After the Opera" is presented by an excellent cast. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy looked delightful and acted with power and charm as Lady Lulu, and Mr. Charles Bryant and Mr. Robert Pateman were both excellent as lover and husband respectively.

THE HIPPODROME.

The melodrama in miniature has found its way to the Hippodrome. It is expressed in the language of the Far East, and has for its exponent a charming diminutive Japanese actress, Mme. Hanako, who comes to London with a considerable reputation as an emotional actress. The little tragedy, which has for its title "Otoko," has already been seen in London. Miss Pauline Chase having appeared in the English version with the name of "A Little Japanese Girl." In "Otoko" Mme. Hanako assumes the character of the serving maid, who, masquerading in her mistress's garments, is come to death by that lady's lover, and by reason of the earnestness of her acting makes an improbable dramatic incident almost an actuality. Like most of her stage compatriots Mme. Hanako adopts a highly-coloured manner of Alfred Bull to appear on returning from their tour next February at the Palace. They will be seen there in duologue plays, such as those identified with them, "The Night Watch" and "A Marriage has been Arranged."

The Marlborough Theatre, after its few weeks' pointing, cleaning, and its decoration, will be ready to receive a series of autumn bookings, which include "The Merry Widow," "The Girls of St. Mary's," "The Night Watch," and "The Marriage has been Arranged."

Miss Debra Moore, following her more than 300 performances as Becky Warden in "The Truth," is about to take Mr. Somerset Maugham's "The Girl in the Street," in which she will sustain the title part, on an itinerary of the South Coast and the provinces. Her tour will open at the Theatre, Brighton, on August Bank Holiday.

The new dramatization of Mr. Bull's novel, "The Madman," by the Lyceum, is to be read by Mr. Carpenter to the members of the company on Monday. Mr. Carpenter is to interpret the role of the madman, and Mr. Bull, as the doctor, formerly assumed by Mr. Willson Barrett and Miss Helen Britton.

The date assigned for the first performance is Saturday, Aug. 22. Mrs. Patrick Campbell starts on tour on Sept. 14 with Mr. Pinero's play, "The Thunderbolt." Miss Stella Campbell will accompany her mother. Two new plays are to be put to proof in the country by Mrs. Campbell, the translation of "La Course du Flambeau" (The Track of the Torch), and "The original French with Mme. Rejane.

The title of Mr. F. Lonsdale's new comedy, written for Mr. Weedon (Gossett), originally announced as "The Worm," has been altered to "The Worm." The cast includes, with Mr. Weedon, Gossett, Messrs. A. E. Mathews, Alfred Bishop, and W. Draycott. Miss Muriel Beaumont and Miss Fanny Brough. The future for production is Tuesday, Sept. 1.

D'Oyly Carte, and Mr. Edw. Ledger.

Mlle. Yvette Guilbert, prompted by her success in London as a singer in character, is about to transfer her services from the variety show to the regular theatre, and she will be presented at a West End playhouse in September by Mr. Joseph Brooks, an American manager. Mlle. Guilbert will appear as a comedy actress in an English version of the French piece, "Mariage d'Idiot," supported by British players.

The new musical play due on Thursday, Sept. 3, at Wyndham's Theatre is also undergoing a change of name from "The Queen of Cadonia" to "Princess Marie." Mr. Adrian Ross writes the lyrics and Mr. Sidney Jones composes the score. The players engaged are the Misses Isabel Jay and Gracie Leigh, and Mr. Edw. Ledger.

ILLICIT LOVE.

SEQUEL TO MARRIED MAN'S INTRIGUE.

In order to clear himself of his paternal responsibilities arising out of his unlawful love intrigue, A. G. Bright, a tram-car conductor, and a married man, residing at Morley, Green-st., London, E., has been charged with a single man in a suit of matrimony. The details of the affair were related at Wimbledon, when Miss Nellie E. L. Bollen, who gave an address in one of the residential quarters of Wimbledon, and described her occupation as that of a servant, summoned Bright to show cause why he should not contribute to the maintenance of his illegitimate male child, of which she alleged he was the father.

A Sad Case.—Mr. J. C. Trappell, who appeared for complainant, said this was one of the worst cases of seduction which he had heard of. Complainant made the acquaintance of Bright in January last year, and after that she walked out with him. In the following February defendant went to the house of complainant's parents in Surbiton, and told her stepmother that he had proposed marriage and had been accepted, and that the wedding would take place in May. On Feb. 21 Bright took the girl out, picked her up with whisky in a Kingston public-house, and then took her to Richmond Park, and seduced her. Again, on Feb. 23, he behaved improperly with her at the house of her mistress in Kingston, and as a result a child was born in November last.

Complainant's letter, full of affectionate terms and endearments, and made promise to marry her, take her away and make her happy for life, and that she was

The Only One He Cared For.—Bright also told the family was an Army pensioner with a good pension, and that he had saved enough to put his parents into a house at Doncaster. On his changing the date of the marriage from May 10 to April 23, the girl left her situation, got her clothes prepared, and sent the wedding invitations out. It was arranged that she would meet him at the public house, but when she went to the appointed place he was not there. The first letter he wrote after this to Mrs. Bollen contained the following: "In receipt of your letter, I thank you very much for what you have done, although you are a daughter, and I have been a loose girl, who has been practising her own confessions. Bright asked for an adjournment of the case when it was last before the court so that he could prove this charge, which, counsel said, was absolutely false, and which he would not put on the stand and swear to come forward and face the writer went on to say: "I have all the letters in my possession now, and she also stated to me she had been taken advantage of by numerous other men," which, Mr. Trappell submitted, was

A Clear Admission.—that he took advantage of her. He also wrote: "I forgive her, and instead of blaming me for all this, she should tell me the truth." All the time Bright was writing to complainant he was a married man, and could not perform the promises he had repeatedly made to marry Mrs. Bollen. Mrs. Bollen, who carried her baby in her arms, entered the witness-box, and essentially bore out counsel's statement. She added that she did not want to go into the public-house at Kingston, but defendant (who was not present in court) forced her and gave her whisky. Bright said it was not strong enough, and ordered the barman to put more in her glass, and he took her on to a tramcar and took her to Richmond Park, where he seduced her, saying it was only right he should do so now. She emphatically denied that there was any truth in defendant's allegation about other men.—Complainant's father said defendant represented himself as a single man, and that he was married. Bright told them he was married. Bright said the house he put his parents into cost £200, and that he was sitting for an examination for a post in the War Office.—The court ordered defendant to pay 5s. a week maintenance, with 4s. 6d. costs.

KING'S PRIZE.

THE BRONZE AND SILVER MEDALLISTS.

We here give portraits of the winners of the shoot for the King's Prize at Bisley. The bronze medalist was won by 2nd Lieut. Brock, Royal Guernsey Militia, with a score of 100, thus equalling the highest aggregate with which the medal has ever been won. Lieut. Brock is only 19 years of age, and this is his third visit to Bisley. On the two previous visits he captured the team sent by the Elizabeth College, of Guernsey. His present performance meant more to him than the winning of the bronze medal, for never before had he succeeded in compiling an aggregate of "a century" over the same distances. He is a son of the Rev. Walter Brock, of St. Peter's-in-the-Wood, Guernsey, and is a distant relative of Gen. Baden-Powell.

The Silver Medalist.—Shooting in the second stage was concluded on Friday, when it was found that, for the first time in the history of the Association, the Silver Medalist was a member of the Artillery arm of the force, viz., Gunner D. R. Paterson, of the Lowlands (Scotland) R.F.A. He came up from the first stage with an aggregate of 101, and to this he added a total of 94-47 at 300 and 47 at 600 yards, giving him a grand aggregate of 195, which won the silver medal and badge. The winner hailed from Kirkcubright, and he has just joined the Territorial Force, having previously served for 15 years in the Galloway Artillery and 10 in Galloway Rifles. He is 39 years of age and by trade a cycle agent. Pte. G. Gray, of the 5th Scottish Rifles, had a similar aggregate to that compiled by Gunner Paterson, but the latter won on shooting off the tie, his three shots, yielding 11, as against 10 by Gray, who had scores of 48, 48, and 48 in the first stage. Borderers, was third with 194-49, 48, and 97, and Tpr. Dunn, West Kent Yeomanry, fourth with 194-49, 44, and 101. An unfortunate mishap occurred to Lieut. Brock, the bronze medalist, for after his sixth shot at 600 yards he altered his sight, and after doing so omitted to raise the flap, and, of course, missed with his seventh shot. A bull's eye would have won him the silver medal, and an inner would have tied with Paterson and Gray. The shoot in the final stage will be found described on another page.

THE FATAL TOOTH.

The extraordinary death of Mrs. Mary Sarah Dakin, 42, of Osborne-st., Clapham-rd., which took place as the result of swallowing a tooth while under gas at Guy's Hospital, was investigated by a coroner's jury. The evidence showed that Mrs. Dakin went to the hospital to have four decayed teeth extracted. She struggled very much while under the gas, and when she recovered consciousness only two of the teeth had been extracted. She was afterwards taken to another room, where she saw the surgeon-dentist. To a lady who went with her she at once complained of a terrible pain in the chest and a sore throat. After a very bad night she went next morning to the hospital and saw Dr. Payne, the operating surgeon, who telephoned to the consulting physician asking him to see her at once. He did so, and said her temperature was 104deg. He marked her card, "Query, bronchitis?" She was not detained in the hospital. On the following day, as she was no better, she went again to the hospital and saw another physician, who, she said, was unable to account for her rise in temperature. Death was due to infection from a decayed tooth lodged in the bronchial tube.

One Out of 300,000.—Dr. Payne stated that while under gas the patient struggled unusually, and one of the teeth pulled out disappeared. Witness and his colleague carefully examined the patient, and both agreed that her respiration was impaired. She made no complaint. They made a careful search for the tooth, but were unable to find it, and the patient was sent to the consultation room. He subsequently saw her there, and she merely mentioned a little soreness at the back of the mouth. His case was unique in 191 years' dental surgery at Guy's Hospital, where 300,000 similar operations had been done. He did not enter the fact of the tooth being missing in the hospital books, but he did in his private book. It was through an inadvertence that it was not entered in the hospital books. The dresser's duty to make the entry.

The Jury's Ruler.—In summing up, the coroner said that although the doctors said they did not think the tooth had gone down into the air passages because there were no symptoms, it was impossible to overlook the evidence that the patient left the extracting room she could scarcely speak, and was complaining of pain. It was most important that the vital entry, "Tooth missing," should have been made in the hospital books, but it was not, and this was a duty that ought not to have been left to a dresser. It was also unfortunate that this poor woman should have made subsequent visits to this hospital without her true condition being recognised.—The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, and added a rider to the effect that Dr. Payne should have reported the failure to find the tooth to the hospital authorities, and that in future a full record should be kept of such reports.

SEVEN YEARS FOR BURGLARY.—Sentence of seven years' penal servitude was passed at the Central Criminal Court upon Wm. Smith, 26, and Chas. Brooks, 22, who were convicted of being concerned in a burglary at the residence of Mr. John Compston, of Christchurch-rd., Streatham.

DOCTOR DIVORCED.

Justice Barrgrave Deane had before him in the Divorce Court the undefended petition of Mrs. Edith O'Brien for the dissolution of the marriage by reason of the cruelty and adultery of her husband, Mr. John Rbt. Chas. O'Brien, a surgeon. Mr. Bayford, who appeared for petitioner, said that the parties were married in October, 1898, at St. Francis Roman Catholic Chapel, Handsworth, Staffordshire, and they afterwards lived at Great Yarmouth. After a time the wife had reason to complain of her husband's conduct in regard to herself and with women, and this was a source of considerable trouble throughout their married life. In January, 1902, respondent was extremely penitent, and went to his wife and which she consented to do. In 1906 they came to London, and on one occasion Mrs. O'Brien saw a young woman in her husband's surgery, and on looking through a window she witnessed an act of misconduct. She then separated from him. Afterwards she found some compromising letters, written by her husband, being impressions on a blotting-pad. In August, 1907, he wrote a confession in these terms:—

I am truly and sincerely sorry for the past, and will be until death, as I have been unfaithful to you, my own darling wife, who has forgiven me for the last time.

Counsel said Mr. O'Brien brought this to his wife, and these words were struck out. On the back of this paper he subsequently wrote:—

I know I have been faithless and cruel to you, but forgive me. I promise I will not do so any more.

Husband and wife continued to live in the same house, when he again assaulted her.

The Wife's Evidence.—In the course of her evidence petitioner said that her husband was in the habit of smacking her face as he passed him, and also knocking her on the shoulder, and at times pinching her horribly. When they were living at Portobello-rd., he threatened to kill her. He brought a paper to her and said that if she would not forgive him, he would commit suicide. At the time he was carrying poisons about him. On Aug. 10 he went on his knees and begged to be forgiven. She refused to do so, and he struck her across the face and called her disgusting names. There was a mass of correspondence in which he asked forgiveness.—The mother of petitioner corroborated the given as to the impressions on the blotting-pad, and also to the effect that Dr. O'Brien stayed with a woman other than petitioner at Shepherd's Bush.—A decree nisi, with costs, was granted.

POSTLE OF PEACE.

DEATH OF SIR W. R. CREMER, M.P.

Sir W. R. Cremer, Radical-Labour M.P. for Haggerston, died this week of a nursing home in London after a long illness. Born in humble circumstances at Fareham, Hampshire, years ago, Sir Randal Cremer lived a life of devotedness to the cause of peace, and devoted himself and his resources wholeheartedly to that cause. At 37 years he was secretary of the International Arbitration League, and he presented to the league the Nobel Peace Prize of £7,000 awarded him in 1903 in recognition of his work. In addition he gave £1,000—representing the savings of a lifetime—towards the fund for establishing a permanent home for the league.

A stormy meeting. The first speech was made during an action at Brighton. The meeting was a stormy one, and the platform was made to rush the platform, but the future apostle of peace, with two other workmen, beat the attacking party back into the hall. Sir Randal Cremer played a prominent part in the Reform League movement, and was one of the organizers of the great franchise meeting in Hyde Park which established public right of meeting in the park. After unsuccessful standing for Parliament at Warwick, Sir Randal was returned as Radical-Labour M.P. for Haggerston division in 1895, and with one interval represented the constituency to the time of his death. He refused knighthood in 1906, but accepted the honour the following year. He was allowed to attend the investiture in ordinary dress. As a man of peace he had scruples about carrying the sword worn with Court or levee dress. His majority at the General Election was 401.

The remains cremated. The remains of the late Sir Randal Cremer, M.P., were cremated at Golden's Green yesterday. Previously the coffin enclosing them, covered with splendid floral offerings, was borne to Whitfield's Tabernacle, Tottenham Court-road, for a funeral service, which was very largely attended by relatives and friends, by admirers generally, and by representatives of various British, foreign, and international Arbitration and Peace Societies. The Rev. Sylvester Horne conducted the service, and in the course of it, delivered a brief address in which he paid high tribute to the late Sir Randal's efforts in the cause of peace. Lord Weardale followed with a short address on the same lines.

NEXT GENERAL ELECTION.

Middlesex (Enfield).—Mr. J. E. B. Newman has been provisionally adopted as the U. and Tariff Reform candidate.

Southall (St. Ives).—Mr. J. P. Lloyd Carpenter (U.), son of the Bishop of Ripon, will oppose Sir C. M. P. (R.). At the General Election the B. majority was 1,122.

Northamptonshire (S.).—Mr. T. Gore (R.) will not seek re-election.

Southampton (Bridgewater).—Mr. H. G. Montgomery, M.P. (R.), is not likely to stand again. His majority at the last election was 17.

Devon (Hendon).—Major A. C. Morrison-Bell, brother of Captain Morrison-Bell, M.P. for Mid-Devon, has been unanimously adopted as U. candidate in succession to Sir J. R. Kenway, M.P. (U.), who retired.

Wolverhampton (W.).—Mr. A. Bird has been recommended for adoption.

CONSERVATIVE CONFERENCE.

The Council of the National Union of Conservative Associations has accepted the invitation of the Cardiff Conservative Association to hold the next annual conference in that city.

The date of the conference was fixed Nov. 18, 19, and 20, and it was arranged that Mr. Balfour should address a mass meeting at Cardiff on the 19th.

A Peckham old lady who for many years has carefully saved all the things that came into her possession by this means amassed a sum over £30.

THE POPP FARGE.

HIGH WYCOMBE COUNCIL AND THE POLICE.

The Town Councillors of High Wycombe are awaking to the fact that the town is beginning to look foolish in the matter of the Popp prosecutions, and the expenses involved are also causing them some uneasiness. The last three prosecutions of Mr. Popp for opening his tobacconist shop on Sundays have been abortive, and the costs fall upon the ratepayers; and as these are represented by the Council it is but natural that the latter should make its voice heard in the matter. As our readers know, the proceedings have been taken under a misty Act of Charles II., and Mr. Popp has been the only tradesman prosecuted. At the last Council meeting Councillor Flint, at question time, asked if he was right in assuming that the cost of the recent fruitless prosecutions against Mr. Popp were paid by the Borough. The Mayor (Ald. Wood): That is so. —Councillor Flint: Following on that question, I should like respectfully to ask whether, under the circumstances, it would be in order for a suggestion to be made by you as Mayor or by this Council, to the Head Constable recommending that this unnecessary expense be stopped and that the ratepayers should be no longer losers by the expense of these costly and at present useless prosecutions?

Protest not in order. —The Mayor said he was afraid that was not in order. The Council could not put itself in conflict with the magistrates. He as Chairman and Ald. Vernon as a magistrate were sitting on the Bench on Saturday, and they, with the other magistrates, could not have received any protest from the Council. The magistrates had the responsibility of the administration of justice, rightly or wrongly, and he hoped and trusted they did it rightly. —Councillor Flint: You think no protest from the representatives of the ratepayers would be in order. —The Mayor: It is the Watch Committee who are the guardians of the police. No protest can come from the Council. You understand that the police have a right to institute proceedings without the sanction of the Watch Committee. We have no voice at all as a Council.

Watch Committee Position. —Ald. Birch: Isn't it a fact that under this Act any ratepayer in the Borough can take the same proceedings that are now being taken. —The Mayor: That is true, but we cannot interfere as a Council. —Councillor Flint: Following the question of Councillor Flint, he should like to ask if it would not be within the province of that Council to move, when the agenda of the Watch Committee came on, a resolution to the effect that these prosecutions, or persecutions, whichever they liked to term it, of Mr. Popp should be stopped. —The Mayor: That is not before us at present. —Councillor Graefe: I want to know if it is within our province to give instructions to the Watch Committee. —The Mayor: You can bring it forward in connection with the Watch Committee's report, and then I will deal with it. I understand that the Watch Committee does not associate itself with these prosecutions—whether that is correct or not is another matter.

Who gave the instructions? —Councillor Goman was going to ask if the Watch Committee have at any time instructed the Superintendent to take proceedings. Is it within your knowledge that the Watch Committee have at any time given instructions to the Superintendent to take proceedings against Mr. Popp. —The Mayor: As far as I am concerned, since I have been on the Watch Committee no such instructions have been given. I cannot speak for my predecessors. —Ald. Birch: I should like to answer that question. I believe instructions were given to the Superintendent by the Committee while I was Mayor. —Ald. Howard: During the time Ald. Birch was Mayor I was on the Watch Committee, and they never gave instructions for prosecuting Mr. Popp—that I am certain of.

The Ratepayers Pay. —When the Watch Committee's report was reached, Councillor Graefe, referring to the Mayor's permission at question time that the subject of the Sunday Trading prosecutions should be again mentioned, asked whether it was in the province of the Council to give instructions to the Watch Committee. —The Mayor: I am afraid it cannot be done. —Councillor Graefe: The expense is going on. —Councillor Ellis: He doesn't mind that. —Councillor Cox: Who pays for these summonses. —The Mayor: We have already been told that. Of course, if the defendant is convicted he is fined and pays all or part of the costs. If he is dismissed the cost falls on the ratepayers. —Councillor Vernon: May I express the opinion of a humble member of the Council that the sooner we stop these proceedings the better, in the interest of the town. —The Mayor: We have no power. I cannot allow any further discussion.

This year's receipts of the Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund to date—£43,500—show a decrease upon last year of no less than £2,000.

WAKING UP!

UNIONIST CLUBMEN AND POLITICAL WORK.

At a time when the hands of so many are directed against clubs it is refreshing to find that there is still a strong feeling in the Association of Conservative Clubs as shaking off the dull sloth which for many years characterized them as political institutions, and are now evincing an active interest in propaganda work. The change has been brought about mainly by the tireless endeavours of Mr. Frank Solbe, the secretary of the association above referred to, and to which some 1,300 Conservative and Unionist Clubs are affiliated. An experienced organizer, Mr. Solbe was quick to realize the political possibilities of clubs, and, together with Sir Herbert Praed, set to work some two years ago to render them of real service to the party. At the outset many difficulties presented themselves, but one by one these were successfully overcome, and clubs were slowly but surely made to realize that membership of a political club carried with it the duty of assisting the party in various directions.

Personal visitations to many clubs, numerous conferences, and the issue of helpful pamphlets contributed to the desired result, and at the various by-elections which have taken place during the past 18 months, members of local Conservative and Unionist clubs have been found for the first time actively assisting in the campaign. In one direction particularly

"BAD COMPANY."

SOCIALIST M.P. AND HIS FELLOW LEGISLATORS.

An extraordinary speech delivered by Mr. Pete Curran, M.P. for Jarrow, in which he was alleged to have referred to members of the House of Commons in unflattering terms, was brought to the attention of the Speaker by Mr. Markham, M.P., who asked whether the speech in question did not constitute a breach of the privileges of the House, being a direct reflection upon other hon. members. The words he wished to take exception to, and which more especially constituted a grave libel on hon. members sitting round the hon. member, were:

Mr. Pete Curran, Labour M.P. for Jarrow, declared at Tottenham that being in the House of Commons did not tend towards a man's moral and intellectual improvement. —(Laughter and cries of "Agree.")—and he questioned whether he was equal intellectually to what he was years ago. (Laughter.) He was doubtful whether he had ever before been in such bad company as that with which he had been compelled to be associated in his experience as a member of Parliament. (Laughter.) Arising out of the decisions of Sir Erskine May, Mr. Markham added that he wished to ask whether that was not libel on the members of the House, and more especially on the hon. members amongst whom Mr. Curran sat. (Laughter and cheers.)

SEWER GAS.

WORKMAN'S UNSUCCESSFUL APPEAL.

An interesting case under the Workmen's Compensation Act was heard in the Appeal Court. A man named Broderick appealed from an award of the judge of Marylebone County Court, and the appeal raised the question whether a man employed by the L.C.C. in the sewers, who had contracted enteritis from inhaling sewer gas in the course of his employment, had met with an "accident" which would entitle him to compensation under the Act. The county court judge by his award found as facts that applicant contracted enteritis by inhaling sewer gas while Working in a Sewer for the L.C.C. and that the result of the enteritis was to accelerate long-existing heart disease and to incapacitate the man for work before the time at which such heart disease would otherwise have incapacitated him; but the judge held that the contracting of enteritis in this manner was not an "injury by accident" within the meaning of the Act. The county court judge also found that it was an incident of the man's work that noxious gases should be present in the atmosphere in which he worked, and that the work therefore involved the risk of poisoning by such fumes, so that the case could not be said to be unexpected or unforeseen, but was a result which might be caused to any one engaged in such

PAY AND POLICY.

TRADE UNIONS AND SOCIALISM.

A WEIGHTY DECISION.

In the Chancery Division, Justice Neville has had before him a case of considerable public interest and political importance, an action being brought by Mr. Walter Victor Osborne, secretary of the Walthamstow branch of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, against the Secretary and its trustees. —Mr. Jenkins, K.C., stated that the relief sought by plaintiff was a declaration that certain rules of the society had been irregularly passed and were not binding on the members. But there was a more important question of principle behind it, viz., whether even if the rules were regularly passed they could be binding on the members or were ultra vires. The broad question underlying this litigation was whether this trade union by itself, or in association with other trade unions, was entitled to apply its funds in financing the Labour or Socialist Party, which in substance maintained entirely by trade unions.

The Disputed Rule. At the 1905 annual general meeting, held at Sheffield, the executive committee endeavoured to restore the old conditions of binding their candidates to the Labour Party, but the proposal was defeated. At the annual general meeting held in Cardiff in October, 1906, the rule now in dispute was carried:—

All candidates shall sign and accept the conditions of the Labour Party and be subject to their Whip. This resolution, Mr. Jenkins contended, was invalid, on the ground that it was against the rule that the society should have power to "amend, rescind, or make rules every three years," having been twice deliberated and adjudicated upon within three years. It was also a departure altogether from trade union principles. —Justice Neville: You say that it is a colourable payment made not really in the interests of the union but of some political views? —Mr. Jenkins said that was so.

Union Funds; Socialist Policy.

—Dealing with the financial position of the Labour Party, Mr. Jenkins said that in its General Fund account of last January the receipts amounted to £1,000, all of which except £257 was contributed by trade unions, and of the £254 subscriptions in the Parliamentary Fund account all except £199 was contributed by trade unions, the defendant society paying £553. An interesting point was the minute contribution from the Socialists, who had one-third of the committee and all the policy. The fact was that the trade unions had abandoned themselves to financing and running this particular parliamentary party. —Justice Neville intimated that he would deal first with the point whether the rule had been regularly passed. —Mr. Peterson, K.C., submitted that the certificate of the registrar was binding. The progress of the case lay in the fact that it was considered desirable to get a united party with a united fund to support common interests before a general election took place and thus avoid any danger of a split.

The Ultimate Goal.

Counsel did not attack the general principle that the society might, if it thought expedient, make a levy and obtain direct representation in Parliament in its interests as a trade union. It had, however, no power to affiliate itself to the Labour Representation Committee of the Labour party, and apply its funds to give effect to that affiliation. The object and policy of the Labour party was not trades unionism, or anything like it; it was the general cause of labour, and the ultimate goal of the party was now proved to be Socialism. Counsel urged that the trade union had no power to compel its members to have their money used for the general purposes of any political party, whatever it might be. It did not matter what the general politics of the candidate were, the point was that this society could only pay him if and so far as he was using his deputy to protect their interests.

Important Judgment.

—In giving judgment, his lordship held that he was bound by the decision in the case of Rosenberg v. the Northumberland Building Society, and that the certificate of the Registrar of Friendly Societies was conclusive, and that the rule was binding.

On the footing that to spend its funds, or part of them, to procure Parliamentary representation, and in seeking to influence the course of legislation, he had to consider in what way it might do it. Obviously, the union had the right to select its own candidates, but in the selection of those candidates it had to determine whether it was most in its interests that they should go to Parliament as independent members, or whether as supporters of one or other of the parties which existed in Parliament; or, further, whether it would be desirable to create, as far as possible, a new party which should devote itself to furthering the interests of the class to which the members of the union belonged. Then there arose the further point, whether apart from the question of representation, the union was entitled to employ any part of its funds in contributions to the funds of any existing party in the State or any party which it was desired to form. He came to the conclusion that, granted the premise that funds might be employed for the purpose of influencing legislation, it must be a question of policy for the union to say how those funds could best be employed. Given the right to spend their money in endeavouring to promote their interests in the House of Commons, the question purely a question of policy to which the court would not concern itself. He had come to the conclusion that the rule as amended was not ultra vires, and the action, therefore, failed, and must be dismissed with costs.

PRINCE IN CANADA.

A GREAT RECEPTION AT QUEBEC.

LOYAL ADDRESSES.

The Prince of Wales has arrived at Quebec, and has had a most enthusiastic reception, the appearance of the Indomitable being the signal for a roaring salute from the guns of the citadel and from the British, French, and American warships lying in the river, and this salute was continued until the Indomitable had crossed the intervening space and took up her berth. At four o'clock sharp the Prince of Wales left the Indomitable, and landed at King's Wharf. Here he was received by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Mayor, and a host of other officials. The following address of the Canadian Parliament and people was presented to the Prince by the Prime Minister, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who read it in French and English:—

"May it please your Royal Highness: The members of the Government of Canada desire, in their own name and in that of the Parliament and people of the Dominion, to offer to your Royal Highness a respectful and deeply sensible greeting. We are deeply sensible of the honour which you, Royal Highness, have done us in making this special visit for the purpose of gracing by your presence the glad occasion which we are assembled to celebrate. We rejoice to welcome in the person of your Royal Highness, the representative of our beloved Sovereign, whose never failing interest in all that pertains to the welfare of this country has had no small share in stimulating towards his Majesty's person and Government which animate his Majesty's Canadian subjects from one end of the Dominion to the other.

Not a Stranger.

"Your Royal Highness, who, we are glad to know, is no stranger to Quebec will not fail to recall the rich memories of its storied past. How, during a century and a half, New France gradually rose into being—how Canada became the theatre of the old-world conflicts—and how the fortunes of war, long trembling at the balance, at length decreed that it should pass under British rule. We cannot doubt that your Royal Highness will agree with us in believing it fitting that the scene of these exploits, and especially the ground upon which Montcalm and Wolfe fought with equal valor for the mastery, should be set apart as a perpetual memorial by English and French Canadians of the great deeds in which both peoples feel an equal pride."

The Prince's Reply.

His Royal Highness, replying like wise in English and French, spoke as follows:—"I am greatly touched by the loyal and sympathetic words of your address, with which you, in the name of the people of Canada, welcome me on this occasion of my visit to the Dominion. I am fully sensible of the honour and responsibility of my position as the representative of your Sovereign, who, ever mindful of the unswerving loyalty of his Canadian subjects, follows, with affectionate interest, everything which concerns the welfare and development of the Dominion. My privileges, therefore, twofold, for I join with you, both as the representative of the King and on my own behalf, in celebrating the 30th Anniversary of the founding of your famous city by Samuel de Champlain.

French Loyalty.

I look forward with keen interest to the impressive ceremonies of the next few days, during which the past and present will appear before us upon a stage of unsurpassed natural beauty. And here, in Quebec, I recall with much pleasure the no uncertain proofs which I have received on my several visits to Canada of the loyalty of the King's French Canadian subjects. Their proved fidelity in time of difficulty and danger, happily long passed, is one of the greatest of the political genius of England's rule; and the knowledge that they and their fellow Canadians of British origin are working hand in hand in the upbuilding of the Dominion is a source of deep satisfaction to the King as well as to all those who take pride in British institutions.

Quebec's Address.

The address presented to the Prince of Wales by the Mayor of Quebec at the Champlain Festival, and read in French. It's principal paragraph was to the following effect:—"Gathered together at the foot of the monument of the founder of the Canadian Fatherland, our hearts are filled with the heroic recollections of three centuries of an existence which more resembles an epic poem than history. The French-Canadian has moved with feelings of pride and gratitude towards the two great Nations that have successfully presided over their career: France, ever beloved, to whom they owe life and their mighty traditions. England, who left them to grow up in freedom whilst preserving their faith, their language, and their institutions, and who granted them a constitutional system resting on the fullest possible liberties, a system undoubtedly the finest and most perfect in the world."

Champlain Day.

Thursday was a busy one. It was Champlain Day, the celebrations being carried out wholly in honour. They began with the arrival of a model, exactly reproduced, of Le Don de Dieu, the tiny caravel in which Champlain ascended the St. Lawrence, and from which he disembarked to found a city where Jacques Cartier had planted the Christian Cross many years before. This part of the pageant was most realistically carried out. The little ship, with its high poop and twin masts, was taken down around the bend of the Isle of Orleans, and with her sails set and ponsons flying, Le Don de Dieu started for Champlain's old landing place. There was but a light breeze blowing, just enough to lift her sails and waft her gracefully along through the lines made by the warships of the three nations.

LOOKING FORWARD.

was it found that the Radical party had the advantage over their opponents, viz., in the matter of public speakers, and to rectify this Mr. Solbe paid special attention. A scheme was formulated to train up in Unionist clubs bands of competent speakers, capable of meeting political opponents on their own ground. This has been put into execution with most encouraging results. To further assist in this direction Mr. Solbe has just issued a pamphlet on "How to Start Speakers' Classes and Debating Societies in Conservative and Unionist Clubs," wherein many practical hints are given, all capable of being put into execution whether the membership be small or large. The need of outdoor "missionary work" is dealt with very trenchantly. The author says:—

It is no easy matter, save at times of political excitement, to get working men to attend indoor meetings. Political enthusiasts will turn up, but the mugwump—the man who votes one way this time and another way the next—can rarely be prevailed upon to put in an appearance. He gets his political food on the way home or during the evening when he forms one of a crowd listening to street-corner orators. We Unionists must have a band of working-men speakers, ready and competent to go out into the highways and byways and lay before the man-in-the-street our case. I am convinced that the reason why so many working men have voted against us in the past is because we have neglected to do outdoor spadework. That our party is waking up to this fact has been demonstrated at recent by-elections, at which it has been no unusual occurrence to find as many as five or six Conservative M.P.s addressing on the same evening street-corner meetings. The result in every case has justified this new departure. Clearly and concisely Mr. Solbe shows how Unionist clubmen can be trained to become competent public speakers, and in so doing has unquestionably rendered the party a most useful and much-needed service.

The Speaker replied: Of course, if the hon. member asked me my opinion on the speech I should give him no answer. If he asks me whether in my opinion it constitutes a breach of privilege in any way, I should say not. Every hon. member is entitled to form his own opinion of a company amongst which he sits. (Laughter.)

Mr. Curran, in explanation, says that as he had no opportunity of reply, he desires it to be known that the quotation made from his speech was incomplete and misleading, and omits the fact that his remark was made as a rather jocular retort to some exclamations by an interrupter at the meeting in question.

SEDITION IN INDIA.

SMART SENTENCES ON NATIVE EDITORS.

The trial of Mr. Tilak, the Nationalist leader, for publishing seditious articles in the Poona weekly "Kesari," of which he is editor, has concluded in Bombay. The prisoner was found guilty, and was sentenced to six years' transportation and a fine of 1,000 rupees. Dhondu Kashinath Phadke, editor and proprietor of the "Arundhaya," a Marathi weekly, who was arrested on a charge of sedition on May 10, has been sentenced to 14 months' imprisonment. Five men who were arrested during the riot in Bombay in connection with the strike of mill operatives have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment varying from 21 days to a month. At Calcutta the Chief Justice has sentenced a printer of the "Jugantar," three years' rigorous imprisonment for publishing seditious articles inciting to rebellion and murder after being warned. The sentence is to commence when the present term of imprisonment—two and a half years—inflicted previously on the accused has expired. Another printer of the same paper has been committed to the sessions for the same offence.

work; and he therefore made his award in favour of the Council. The workman appealed.—The Court, without calling upon counsel for the respondents, dismissed the appeal.

Hedge Cutter's Misfortune.

Judge Snags gave an important decision, at Kettering County Court, under the Workmen's Compensation Act. An applicant, who had previously lost the sight of one eye, was hedge-cutting for a farmer when a thorn entered his other eye, and he practically lost his sight. His honour held that the applicant was not working under a contract of service within the meaning of the Act. The word service did not include an exceptional job where a workman was paid by the piece, went to work and left off at his own time, finding his own tools. The application was refused.

THE IMPERIAL COLONIAL CLUB

A club, having as its object the provision of a central meeting place for our kith and kin from across the seas, has been formed in the West-End, and excellent temporary premises have been secured at 94, Piccadilly. Representatives of the various British colonies have taken great interest in the scheme, and the list of vice-presidents includes such well-known names as Sir Harry Rawson, Lord Plunkett, Lord Rosmead, and the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava. The club will be opened on Saturday, Aug. 8.

THE GREAT MARATHON RACE.

BRITISH COMPETITORS BEATEN BY THE HEAT.

RACE AWARDED TO AN AMERICAN.

HER MAJESTY'S SYMPATHY WITH THE DISQUALIFIED ITALIAN.

SPECIAL REPORT AND NOTES.

The great Marathon race, run from Windsor Castle to the Stadium at Shepherd's Bush—a distance of some 26 miles—will live in history as one of the most remarkable and sensational contests in the annals of sport. Amidst a scene of tense and painful excitement, Dorando, an Italian, struggled home first, falling headlong over the tape in a state of complete collapse. Four times did he fall before reaching the winning post, and sympathisers assisted him to rise. This action, kindly meant, and without which Dorando would never have finished, robbed him of his victory, for it was a violation of the rule which says:—

No attendant will be allowed on the track in the Stadium. The race was in consequence awarded to Mr. J. J. Hayes, a representative of the United States, who finished second. The result, therefore, was as follows:—

1st—J. J. Hayes (U.S.A.).
2nd—C. Hefferon (South Africa).
3rd—J. Forshaw (U.S.A.).
Distance run—26 miles 385 yards.
Time of winner—2 hours 58 min. 18 sec.

THE RACE.

Fifty-five runners, representing 16 countries, took part in the classic contest. They were started on their long journey by the Princess of Wales, from the Eastern Terrace of Windsor Castle. The day was an ideal one for competitors hailing from countries accustomed to tropical heat, and correspondingly disadvantageous to the British representatives. Never before in the history of sport has so large a crowd witnessed the Marathon Race. A safe estimate of the number of people who saw it would be anything between a million and a million and a half. Practically the whole of the route from Windsor to the Stadium was lined with spectators, and even in the remote districts between the smaller villages hundreds of carriages, motor-cars, and traps were drawn up by the side of the road, nearly all containing ladies, who clapped their hands and waved their handkerchiefs as the runners passed. The schoolboys at Eton and Harrow were both given permission to watch the race. The former cheered in their hundreds when Eton was passed, so well were the British runners placed, but the Harrow boys were much more subdued as Hefferon and Dorando led through Harrow. The biggest crowds were stationed outside Windsor Castle, at Uxbridge, Harrow, and Sudbury, but for the last five miles the athletes ran through an unbroken crowd of from two to ten persons deep.

English Take the Lead.

At the start of the race the English representatives took the lead, and were in front for nearly half the course. Half way through the race the times of the three leading men were as follows:—

| | H. M. S. |
|----------|----------|
| Price | 1 15 13 |
| Hefferon | 1 15 54 |
| Lord | 1 16 20 |

A mile before Pinner Price had to sit down. He was leading at the 14th mile-post, by seven seconds from Hefferon, the times being 1 hr. 22 min. 3 sec. against 1 hr. 22 min. 10 sec. Lord was over a minute behind. Hefferon, once in front, appeared to be running so well that it seemed impossible that another runner could gain the victory. Longboat now began to make up a lot of lost ground. At the 15th mile he came under the notice of the timekeepers for the first time. Hefferon had covered the distance in 1 hr. 22 min. 22 sec. Lord was exactly two minutes behind him, Dorando made an excellent third, and Longboat was rapidly overhauling the latter. Lord now became terribly distressed, and on Longboat passing the Italian and running up to the shoulders of Lord, the latter fell into the arms of a spectator at the side of the road and seemed out of the race. Fortunately, however, he partially recovered, and with characteristic pluck and determination finished the course. The Canadian attendants on Longboat reported that runner to be in excellent condition, requiring little or no service, and likely to finish remarkably fast. This prophecy seemed likely to be fulfilled, for Longboat covered the sixteenth mile in half a minute less than the South African.

Longboat's "Mood."

The next mile, however, told a different story. While the South African was running a splendid race, the Canadian appeared to be what his trainer called "moody." Flanagan, his trainer, who is a brother of the great American hammer-thrower, told our representative that Longboat is a very difficult man to train. "He would eat a pound of candy if a youngster offered it to him, and he would drink a bottle of wine if told to do so. I have to get him right out into the country and make him run every day in order to get him fit. We in Canada have a great belief in him as a runner, and we are confident that he could beat the best that Europe could put alongside of him." A little later the trainer admitted that it was not Longboat's "day out." The occasional stoppage of the Indian was usually followed by a fairly rapid run, but when one of his attendants produced a pint bottle of champagne seven miles from the goal, old athletes knew that the Indian's chances of finishing in the first flight were hopeless. This proved to be the case, for soon afterwards Longboat gave up, and finished the course in a motor-car. Just before the Stadium was reached, Hefferon, who was leading at the time, by a few yards, was overtaken by Dorando. The Italian entered the enclosure, followed by Hayes, a representative of the United States, the latter having succeeded in passing the South African, after a gallant struggle.

STADIUM SCENE.

DRAMATIC END TO THE GREAT RACE.

Every place in the Stadium was occupied at five o'clock, when the arrival of the leaders in the race was expected. Minute after minute dragged by. At five minutes past five a board was borne past the royal box by two men intimating that at the 24th mile-post, two miles from the Stadium entrance, Charles Hefferon, of South Africa, was leading, and Pietro Dorando, a young Italian, was second. Rockets were fired at the 25th mile-post, and when the leader approached the Stadium, but the excitement grew, though everyone was silent, and just before the leader staggered into the arena there was an absolute hush. A moment before the City townmaster, who has been the chief operator with the megaphone all through the Games, had shouted: "The leading runner, an Italian, is in sight," so the multitude was prepared for the appearance of Dorando, though greatly perplexed at the alteration in the order of the leaders.

Dorando's Arrival.

Then another period of dead silence ensued, which was broken by a low roar, increasing in force as a figure was seen to stagger into the arena. It was Dorando. Blindly he took the wrong turning, going to the right. A dozen willing hands, however, set him right, and put him on his road to the left. He staggered on, surrounded by a crowd of cheering compatriots and others past the bandstand, where the Italian National Anthem was being played. Then the mighty crowd gave a gasp, he had fallen. He was urged, beseeched, and exhorted to continue, and a mighty cheer went up as, tottering in a pitiful manner, he again went on. Again, when yet 180 yards from the winning post, he sank to the ground.

An American in Sight.

At this point another sensation occurred. Another competitor was on the track. Hayes, the American, had entered. Slowly he approached the recumbent Italian, when suddenly the latter started to his feet, and setting his teeth to the effort, he could not last. Once more he fell, and was practically pushed along. The spectators gave a tremendous cheer, which came straight from their hearts, when they saw the plucky little Italian fall in an impossible heap on the tape. It is impossible to describe the look of hopeless agony on the Italian's face as he made his last effort. Three minutes later Hayes, the second man home, passed the post.

Robbed of Victory!

Though everyone was filled with admiration for the plucky little Italian's grand feat, it could not be denied that he had been helped. There were in the eyes of many when it was realised that the victory could not conscientiously be given to him. It may here be mentioned that when the Queen, who had entered the Royal box some time before the winner was expected, was visibly affected at his distressing condition. Her Majesty showed her queenly sympathy by at once inquiring after his condition. It was a relief to everyone in the vast multitude when the megaphone man advanced before the Royal box and announced that Dorando was out of danger. An official subsequently stated that such a dramatic finish was never expected, otherwise, precautions would have been taken to prevent any help being administered to an exhausted competitor.

It cannot be denied that had such precaution been taken Dorando would never have finished. If, as there really should have been, a doctor had been waiting, the Italian would never have been allowed to continue. Those who saw him will never forget that terrible expression that was on his face. It is a thousand pities that after all the cup of victory should be snatched from his lips.

The First British Arrives. All this while loyal Britons were wondering what had happened to the British representatives. Would they never come. A ninth competitor entered, but in a singularly unimpressive fashion. The question arose, "Was he a Briton?" But it was not. It was Swanberg, the Swede, who finished second in the last Marathon. One wondered how it was he had not won, for he actually finished in a sprint comparatively fresh. And so they came in, representatives of every nation but the United Kingdom. When at length spectators had come to the conclusion that something must have happened the announcement was made that Clarke, the first British runner, had arrived. When he breasted the tape he was loudly cheered, but, compared with the enthusiasm which greeted the first competitors, his reception was flat. In fact, English people were disappointed. The cream of our long distance runners had been hopelessly beaten by competitors who, for the most part, were considered "outsiders." The times generally were slower than had been expected, but the intense heat accounted for much.

HOW I WON.

MR. HAYES TELLS THE STORY OF HIS RACE.

Mr. J. J. Hayes, the young American who has won the Marathon Race, is 23 years old, and is a clerk in a New York store. He has won several 15 miles races in America, and finished next to Morrissey in the American trial. He is a short, slight, unpretentious-looking man, with a dark complexion. His quiet, modest, unobtrusive manner is in keeping with his unassuming appearance. In an interview he said:—The only part of the race that worried me was when I was three or four miles off the end, and I had to run on the hot asphalt. We American boys are not used to running on asphalt, and it worried me a lot. I can tell you, my feet felt as though they were sticking, and I couldn't get along well. The last part of the race was the part I liked best. I had been putting my back into it all the way up hill, and the final run seemed quite easy and good by comparison. I felt quite fresh at the end, for I had been saving myself to the last, and I knew if I could only keep on going at my own pace I should be well placed.

Saving Himself for the Finish.

When I had done 15 miles I was eighth or ninth, for I had not hurried myself at first, and I knew I should have to put in all I knew to finish well. Friends in the crowd shouted, "America! America!" and crowd made astonished me. Eighty thousand people were cheering like mad. I saw a vast circle of faces, and I thought, "I wonder if it is all over yet?" When I had passed the winning post I went home with my friends, and I did not know what had happened until just before dinner my friends slapped my back and said, "You have won the Marathon Race!" The course was splendid. It was cool and well kept. It was like running through a garden.

Simple Training.

I have trained and lived simply. I have taken good nourishing food and plenty of exercise, and I feel as fit as a fiddle still. All the time I have avoided wine and alcohol of any kind, and I have trained so that I might feel natural and well. I did not believe in fussy dieting or codding myself. I am a New Yorker, of Irish parentage, and I am proud I should have come over to Great Britain to run here, for the British have always treated me as a Kinsman. I am a member of the Irish-American Athletic Club in New York, and I have had opportunity of meeting some good sportsmen and athletes. In the Boston Marathon Race of 1906, which was a 25 miles contest, I ran fifth, and did the course in 2 hours 55 min. Last year in the same race, when Longboat won, I was third, and improved on my previous time by doing the 25 miles in two hours and a half. I did not in the least expect to win the Marathon Race, for I knew that men who had beaten me were taking part, but I hoped to be somewhere in front—that is all.

SIGNOR DORANDO.

INTERVIEW WITH THE PLUCKY ITALIAN COMPETITOR.

Yesterday Dorando had entirely recovered from the effects of his great effort. Shortly after the race he was removed from the Stadium to his lodgings at 8, Church-st., Shaftesbury Avenue, a house of much interest among his compatriots. His movements occasioned great interest, and he was everywhere greeted with enthusiasm. He seemed to be in perfect health—a wonderful contrast to his pitifully exhausted condition in the Stadium. The news of his disqualification was broken to him by Count Brunetta d'Usses, an Italian member of the International Olympic Council. Dorando was extremely surprised. "But I won," he said. "But I won. I won!" "Certainly you are the moral victor," replied the count, "and you will be regarded as such throughout the world." Count Brunetta went on to say that a special prize had been awarded to Dorando for his magnificent effort, and that the Queen had expressed her intention of personally giving him a cup in recognition of his plucky effort.

QUEEN'S SYMPATHY

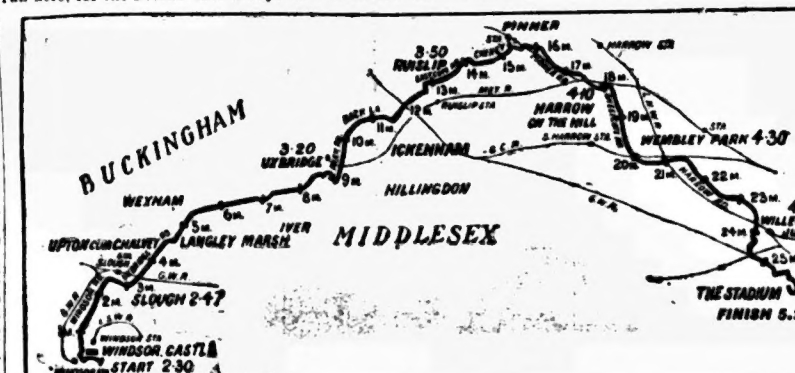

A SPECIAL CUP FOR THE ITALIAN RUNNER.

Reference had already been made to the sympathetic interest which Her Majesty displayed in the tragic termination of the great race. With the happy knack of doing the right thing at the right time which our Royal Family possess, the Queen expressed her desire to Dorando in recognition of his plucky endeavour. An announcement to this effect was made by Lord Desborough at the close of the Marathon dinner, given at the Grafton Galleries by the Government to the Olympia representatives, and was received with tremendous applause and "hurrahs" in every European tongue.

MISTRESS AND COOK.

AMAZING STORY OF OLD WOMAN'S LIFE.

The case in which Caroline Blackburn, said to be the wife of a doctor practising in Kennington, was charged with manslaughter came before the Central Criminal Court. Counsel told a remarkable story. The charge referred to the death of a woman of 80 named Livingstone, who was a servant at a boarding-house in Never-place, Kennington, kept by Mrs. Blackburn. Blackburn said that she was not given such food, and that she—Never took off her clothes; Never washed or was washed; Wore an old pair of men's boots; Lived and slept—in the kitchen.

A former servant at the boarding-house said that Livingstone slept on a carpet on the floor, covered with an old coat, and resting her head on a little stove. There were eight bedrooms in the house, and they slept in the kitchen also. She did not think the woman was worth her keep, but that nothing about her having SET FIRE TO HER BED.

Accused said she kept the woman because she did not want to be shown up. When she was dying witness went to the police, who referred her to the infirmary, and then she was sent to the relieving officer, who in turn referred her to the medical officer, and he was not at home. When the doctor came he was angry, and she denied having summoned him. He was saying something about a hoax.—Mr. Doughty: Why did you deny going to the doctor? Because I did not want to get the sack before I had got a new situation.—Dr. Gregory, district medical officer, said when he called to see the woman, accused opened the door, and said there was no one of the name of Livingstone in the house. He inquired about the woman in the kitchen, and accused said she had a cold, but was much better.—Accused was found not guilty, but was severely censured for her conduct.

THE GENERAL HYGIENE OF THE ATHLETE.

This important subject is treated in the full edition of The Elliman R.E.P. Book (256 pages), but the following may be of service:—

Rubbing and massage with Elliman's stimulate the circulation and increase the contractile power of muscles, and muscle which has been exhausted by repeated stimulation with an electric current so that it cannot perform a certain feat, has, after a few minutes' massage, performed the task easily.

Proof that muscles can perform their functions with greater ease and less fatigue after massage can be multiplied to any extent.

But it is essential that the massage should be well done, and although a trained masseur would be most valuable, a careful study of the anatomy of massage will enable an intelligent person to be of great service. The R.E.P. booklet enclosed with letters of Elliman's.

In relieving the sense of fatigue and the sore tender feeling which the young athlete, and in early days of training, even the veteran, is prone to, a practical example of the value of rubbing with Elliman's is obtained.

In the experience of the most expert of the sense of relief and comfort felt after an ordinary rubbing with Elliman's is considerable, but it is not a mere good indiscrimination rubbing, kneading and tapping which also added, infinitely greater benefit would be derived. Massage with Elliman's improves the "tone" of muscles by inducing a plentiful supply of new blood, helping the lymph flow, and generally increasing the tissue changes. It also minimises the effects of slight strains and injuries which constantly tend to occur while taking exercise.

Its good effect upon the skin and its function is obvious to the eye. The rough, harsh, "goose skin" condition disappears, the skin becomes shiny and glossy, and is not easily bruised. The subcutaneous fat disappears, all the sweat glands and "grease" glands are stimulated, the pores are kept free from accumulation, and thereby thorough removal of numerous noxious products secured.

The Cold Bath is useful. No doubt the shower bath is most beneficial, and can easily be improvised, but the cold sponge and the plunge bath are of great value.

Further information is available in the complete edition of The Elliman R.E.P. Book, 256 pages, First Aid and Rubbing Eases Pain Handbook, 12 pages free (foreign stamps accepted) or upon other terms found upon a special label affixed to outside of cartons containing Elliman's, 1s. 10d., 2s. 9d., 4s.—Elliman, Sons, and Co., Slough, England.—[Advt.]

There is a common misconception to the effect that there was a Marathon race in ancient times. This is not so; it is a race organised to commemorate the glorious feat of the gallant Greek soldier, Pheidippides, who carried to Athens the news of the victory of Marathon and fell dead at the feet of the magistrates. That same Greek runner ran from Athens to Sparta (140 miles) in two days to convey news of the Persian invasion.

A Queenly Act.
It is such a spontaneous action ..

Her Majesty is responsible for the presentation of a special cup to the Italian Boraudo, the tragedy of which final efforts and failure can only be realized by those who witnessed it, which endears the Queen to all classes of her subjects. Her Majesty is intensely human; never was a consort who rejoiced and suffered with her people more keenly, and with a complete absence of all class distinctions.

Apart from the disgust of the electors with the doings and undoings of the Government, Mr. Guinness is an ideal candidate who has the advantage of being a good fight at a time when the electors are looking for a strong, vigorous, and energetic leader.

WIDE AWAKE

GERMAN NOBLEMAN

ALLEGED MARRIAGE FRAUDS.

A curious matrimonial case was heard at Brentford, when Oscar Goldenberg, a commercial agent, giving an address in Gray's Inn, was charged with having obtained by fraud the sum of 9,500 marks from Miss Marie Bodenstern, of some Park-road, Strand Green, and St. Blaz, Thurston. It was alleged that Miss Bodenstern in 1900 had an advertisement in the "Evening Standard" in which she stated that a German nobleman possessed 800,000 marks wished to marry a lady of noble birth. She answered the advertisement, and corresponded with him, and subsequently the lady advanced him money from various sources, including 2,500 marks for investment, 4,000 marks to enable him to get a good position in a hotel, and 30 marks for a deal in St. Bernard's.

The Defence.

Being desirous of giving evidence Goldenberg was sworn in the Jewish fashion and made a statement through an interpreter. He said it had been stated that he had never been a manager. He produced an agreement with Baron de Berchthold, who agreed not to close any business without previously bearing defendant's advice and receiving his consent. Mr. Goldenberg received under the agreement, for the first three months £10 per month, and later an extra commission of 25 per cent. on the business transacted.

Mr. Goldenberg received a power of attorney. This agreement was signed by all parties, including Baron Paul de Berchthold and Estelle Baroness de Berchthold. Defendant said that the money he received from various sources he had the baron amounts of £85, £410, and £25, as well as other amounts during the last few days, for which he had no receipt as the baron had to leave suddenly. As the departure of the baron was so sudden defendant became alarmed and suspicious. A gentleman who also had intercourse with the baron offered to go to the baron and see if he could get the baron to return. Defendant said that the baron was a very rich man and he had the baron's money. The prosecution also said that he had inserted an advertisement in the German papers.

Why He Changed His Name.

Defendant had no knowledge of such an advertisement until the day of his arrest. When in Brighton he read a matrimonial advertisement in a German paper and answered it. In reply he received from a certain doctor a letter named A. Meier, who was living at Acton, a letter which defendant in which defendant was requested to send 5s. He became a member just as prosecutor did. He at first corresponded in his right name, and later on, when he was living in London, Dr. Meier persuaded him to change his name for the purpose of greater success. He stated that his intention with Miss Bodenstern was strictly honest, and he wanted to meet her at the end of June or the beginning of July to make a full disclosure and give her the policy of his life for £100. All his undertakings had been in his right name, and those who knew him under the name of Goldenberg said at once that his right name was Goldenberg, and he had taken another name for the purpose of the marriage business.

Previously Married.

Mr. Counsel: Have you ever been married? Yes—Is your wife alive? No—When did you leave her? Before I was married. Then you are married man? I have been divorced. When were you divorced? When I had been in England a year and a half, I unexpectedly received a letter from a solicitor in Germany telling me not to write to her as the marriage had been dissolved and the divorce made absolute. I received the letter in Brighton. Goldenberg said when he came to England he first went to the East End and went to a hotel. He admitted writing to Miss Bodenstern that he was manager of a limited company, of good circumstances and of aristocratic descent. That was untrue.

MAN AND WIFE DROWNED.

DANGEROUS OBSTRUCTION IN THE SEVERN.

An inquest was held at Bridgnorth on the bodies of Alexander Mackenzie and his wife Clara, of Downe Street, Birmingham, who were drowned at Quatford, on the Severn. The deceased gentleman, it was believed, had stood up in the small boat, in which he and wife were rowing, in order to raise a wire rope by which the ferry is kept across the river, so that the boat might pass underneath it, and in so doing had overbalanced. The little boat was overturned, and both occupants were drowned. Mr. Taylor, of the bathhouse at Quatford, heard a splash and saw a man in the water, and another man in a boat holding to the ferry. Almost immediately he observed the man swimming towards the boat, and then both sank. Police at Quatford were informed of the accident on Sunday afternoon. It was 17th of the middle and 3ft. at the side. He said it was impossible for anybody to go under the wire in a boat in the centre of the river. The coroner commented adversely upon a dangerous obstruction being placed across the river, and said it ought to be removed immediately. A jury returned a verdict of found drowned, and endorsed the coroner's remarks.

A SCUFFLE.

LIVELY SCENE IN THE NEW CROSS-ROAD.

Mr. Geo. Hy. Prizeman sought, in the Divorce Court, to have his marriage dissolved by reason of the alleged adultery of his wife. Edith (now stated to be engaged to the Crown Theatre, Leekhampton, Mr. Thos. Scarff). The charge was denied. The parties were married in 1890 at Camberwell, and they afterwards lived together in Lyndhurst-road, Clapham. After a time Mr. Prizeman made the acquaintance of co-respondent, who was then a foreign lighterman in the employ of Messrs. Cross & Sons. Petitioner got employment with the same firm, he being in charge of the barge "Early Bird." While the husband was away from home, according to the evidence, co-respondent was a frequent visitor to his house, and used to be alone with Mrs. Prizeman for a considerable time.

Shadows on the Blind.

Mrs. Poulaines, wife of a decorator, said that in 1907 she was living in Brompton, New Cross-road. Petitioner resided in Lyndhurst-road, Clapham. Mrs. Scarff came to her house, accompanied by her daughter. After a time shadows were observed on the blind at the opposite house. There was afterwards a disturbance at that house, and when respondent and co-respondent came out there was a "scuffle" between all the parties. What happened? Mr. Scarff went for Mrs. Prizeman and tore her hat off. Miss Scarff and Mr. Prizeman were also engaged in the "scuffle" (laughter). Mrs. Young, daughter of the last witness, said that she had seen Mr. Scarff at Mrs. Prizeman's house several times. She was a witness of the "scuffle" between all the parties.

The Defence.

For the defence, respondent was called, and denied that she had ever committed adultery with Mr. Scarff. He had frequently been to the house, but he did not see her alone. He and her husband used to cycle together. On the occasion of the "scuffle" Mrs. Scarff accused her of stealing a diamond ring, and got hold of her hand, but witness said she never received the ring. On that day Mr. Scarff was not in her room. She had left him several times in consequence of the charges he made against her. He wanted her to "lead the life of a hermit." (Laughter.) He had said he wanted to be revenged on Scarff. Cross-examined: She knew that Scarff was a married man, and his wife was a witness of the "scuffle" between them. Wm. Prizeman, son of the last witness, said that Mr. Scarff had interfered himself in getting him employment. He had never seen anything wrong between his mother and Mr. Scarff.

Co-Respondent's Evidence.

Mr. Thos. Scarff, the co-respondent, said that he was a coal merchant's lighterman. He denied that he had ever committed adultery with respondent. With regard to April 27, he went into the house, but he stood on the mat, and only remained for five minutes. What happened on that night? There was a little bit of an upset between me and my wife. There was a bit of a "scuffle," but it only lasted for about three minutes. Witness said that he dismissed petitioner from his employment because he said he was going to sleep with his wife. Cross-examined: He admitted having been to the house when Mr. Prizeman was away, but her boy was always present. He could give no reason for the assault upon him on April 27 by his wife. She was not going to be called, nor his daughter. He did not say his wife forgave him when he got home on that night. Re-examined: This "scuffle" was not a prize fight. (Laughter.) It was a bit of "What are you doing here?" (Renewed laughter.) Without calling on counsel for the petitioner, Justice Baggallay Deane came to the conclusion that the case was established, and he pronounced a decree nisi, with costs, against co-respondent.

MILITARY SUIT.

COURT-MARTIALING A CO-RESPONDENT.

Mr. Jno. Boniface, a co-sergeant in the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Sussex Regt., married the respondent in 1901 at Brighton. Twelve months afterwards he was ordered to Crete, and he left his wife in the married quarters at Malta. While there she was visited by the co-respondent, Sergt. Chas. J. Polley, who was in the same regiment as petitioner. This coming to the knowledge of the authorities, two sergeants were directed to make a search, and they found respondent and co-respondent together. Afterwards there was a court-martial held on Sergt. Polley, who was reduced to the ranks, and respondent was taken off the strength of the regiment, and sent home to England. There was a claim for damages against co-respondent, but the President doubted whether any could be recovered, and ultimately it was decided to abandon the claim. A decree nisi, with costs, was granted.

POLICE AND SCOUT.

THE MIGHTY AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION.

Yesterday at the Guildford County Court, P.S. Baker, of the Surrey Constabulary, was summoned for assaulting a motorist named Wm. Hy. Munn at Witley on June 25. The allegation was that Baker accused the automobile scout of warning a chauffeur of the police trap, and when he denied it took hold of his badge to look at the number and used an obscene word. The allegation was totally denied by P.S. Baker. Mr. Kempton (for the police) said the charge was misstated, and that the scout had had at his back the mighty Automobile Association, and it was a disgrace to such an association to bring such a case. The object, continued Mr. Kempton, was to get a bit of their own back with a man who had obtained convictions against many of their members. The magistrate stopped the case and dismissed it with costs. Mr. Marshall, H.M.C., for the prosecution, withdrew a second summons against Baker for obscene language on another day, and costs were allowed in that case.

[Notes on the Week's Racing, with Jottings and Analysis of Important Pending Races, given in full, together with selections for each day, in our Friday and Saturday Editions. The whole is condensed into the briefest possible space in this Sunday's issue, which mainly deals with Saturday's racing and selections for the early part of the coming week. The earlier editions should be ordered through West's agent or at the Railway Bookstall.]

The inauguration of a very full but unimportant week was marked by the racing at the City of London. Far Out, Harriet, Harvest Queen, Mercury, The Swan, and Wise Beauty. Windsor wants a bigger number frame, for which it has been the victim of numbers of the runners and of the race. For the public convenience the official programme should be on sale at every railway terminus whence the race trains start.

Dean Swift is an extraordinary horse to ride, having a crooked mouth, so that he invariably hangs to the left, which happens to suit the Epsom course. George Wall, one of the leading African trainers, has a perfectly fitted establishment on the Cowley-road, Durban. His stable is comprised almost entirely of horses imported from England, and he has a large number of horses in training.

THE WHITE KNIGHT.

Will again win another Cup, whilst the week's "good thing" (at a long price) is to repeat last year's victory in the Drayton Handicap.

SPORT JOTTINGS.

There can be no question but that before very long now an Act will be brought in to control actions at law relating to betting.

Mr. Swakdam's Pharmacy, for whom Martin trains a few horses, has just been appointed to the shrievalty of Somerset.

Wm. Mumford, the Newmarket trainer and jockey, has just arrived at Bombay, where he again anticipates having the same extraordinarily successful season as last winter.

Mr. F. MacBride, who is now racing and training in England, has been adopted as his colours dark blue and gold quartered, so as to incorporate the Orby-Vale blue.

Perhaps the one becomes a greater nuisance on the racecourse, when one is in the inevitable rush, than the man who stops you to borrow a match or to see your opinion upon the steeple-chase.

The scramble for the cards upon arrival at a meeting only endorses my opinion that for the public convenience the official programme should be on sale at every railway terminus whence the race trains start.

THE SIEVER CASE.

RECORDER'S CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY.

The sensational case against Mr. Sievier, who is charged with blackmailing Mr. J. B. Joel, will open on Monday at the Central Criminal Court. The Recorder (Mr. Forrest Fulton), in addressing the grand jury, referred to the indictment against Sievier, who, he said, was accused of causing a telegram demanding £5,000, with menaces, without reasonable or probable cause, to be received by Mr. Joel. In addition to that felony, he was charged under Lord Camden's Act with the misdemeanours of threatening Joel that he would publish certain libellous matters, and that, in the alternative, he would abstain from publishing such libellous matters, the object in each instance being to obtain from Joel a sum of £5,000. The accused seemed to be an owner of racehorses, and amongst the other occupations he followed was that of editor of a newspaper. "The Winning Post" for some years past, according to the statements for the prosecution, numerous articles and paragraphs of a defamatory character had appeared in "The Winning Post" in reference to Mr. Joel. Mr. Joel, for reasons presumably best known to himself, had not one prosecutor, as Sievier is charged in connection with the publication of those libels.

Heavy Losses.
The evidence disclosed that in the spring of this year Sievier had lost a lot of money on his betting transactions. About that time Sievier personally approached Mr. Joel, who was then a member of the Grand Jury, and asked him to get him £2,000 on security. He then approached Mr. Joel's brother, who refused to entertain the application. Sievier then said to Bendon, "You had better borrow the money from Jack Joel, and he promised that if the man was willing he would not trouble Jack Joel again. The suggestion appeared to be that Bendon should get the money from Joel and lend it to Sievier, who, in consideration, was to give an undertaking not to write any more libellous articles or paragraphs in "The Winning Post" about Joel. Bendon, however, declined to have anything to do with the matter, and there, according to his (the Recorder's) opinion, showed his good sense. Bendon, however, recommended Mr. Chas. Mills to Sievier as a mutual friend and as a man who might be able to negotiate the business which Sievier wanted to be done. However, Bendon did not see a prosecutor, who told him that he wanted a letter from Sievier promising not to molest him.

Mr. Joel's Admissions.
According to the evidence, Sievier said, "No, certainly not. I have no transactions with Mr. Joel. My loan is with you. These transactions occurred in April, 1908, and Mr. Joel consulted his solicitor, Mr. Abraham. Mr. Joel seemed to have admitted that from that time forward his intention was to prosecute Sievier if he had a chance to do so. On June 23 Mills telephoned to Sievier saying that Joel was sick to death of the articles in "The Winning Post" and would like the matter settled, and he added (Mills) to Sievier, "I would like to settle for £5,000, and settle for as little as you possibly could. Sievier told Mills he would want £5,000, and on the following day Mills told Joel that Sievier would not accept less than £5,000, adding, "There will be more hot things about you in the Winning Post next week. Joel said he was prepared to pay £2,500 if Sievier would write a letter to the effect that he would refrain from further attacks, but later he agreed to advance £25,000 on condition that Sievier gave a bill for £2,500 and a letter promising not to molest him.

Agreeing to Terms.
Mills repeated that offer to Sievier, who at first objected to the condition requiring him to give a letter, but he ultimately agreed to the terms, and he handed the £25,000 to Sievier, who then gave the letter to Mills, who then gave it to Joel. The original letter did not contain the words which were afterwards added, "and I will not, as you say, molest you again." According to Mills, Sievier also gave him, to show to Joel, a copy of an advertisement of a warrant from "The Police Gazette," showing a warrant in a warrant, which would prevent Sievier from being intended publishing in "The Winning Post" between the photographs of two murderers. The warrant apparently had reference to some crime committed in South Africa. Mills went to see Joel, and showing him the copy, said, "This is what is going in about Mr. Sievier. I am going at the letter from Sievier. Mr. Joel pointed out that the words he wanted were not there, and he gave Mills a cheque for £5,000 under protest, with instructions to get the desired words put in by Sievier. The words were added by Sievier accordingly, and Mills gave him a cheque for £4,000, deducting £500 which he said Sievier owed him. The grand jury found a true bill against Mr. Sievier.

A LITTLE HERO.

BOY OF SIX SAVES GIRL OF SEVEN.
Remarkable bravery and presence of mind were recently shown by a six-year-old boy named John Collins, the son of a farm labourer living at Barden, Kent. Several children were playing on the side of a stream, when Isabel Briant, a girl aged seven, fell into 5 ft. of water. Thereupon a panic ensued among the other children, who ran off crying to tell their parents, but the boy, John Collins, displayed the utmost coolness and presence of mind. Breaking a long branch from an ash-tree, he quickly ran along a plank, only 11 in. wide, and held the branch out to the drowning girl, who was able to grasp it. Then walking along the narrow plank the boy pulled the girl 14 ft. through the water to some brickwork, where, after a hard struggle, he succeeded in landing her just as the terrified parents came running to the spot. In giving this version of the rescue the little hero remarked, "When she got hold of the stick she did swim."

THE POULTRY RUN.

The White Leghorn.

Those whose object is eggs rather than table fowls, and who prefer a bird sitting on a sitting breed, cannot do better than go in for the Leghorn. Of the three varieties—white, brown, and black—the former is, perhaps, the most popular, but on account of its colour it should not be recommended for town runs. Being of active habits, the Leghorn requires a large run, and the fowls should be kept in a garden where they can have plenty of food and exercise. The white Leghorn is a good layer, and the fowls should be kept in a garden where they can have plenty of food and exercise. The white Leghorn is a good layer, and the fowls should be kept in a garden where they can have plenty of food and exercise.

WHITE LEGHORN COCKEREL.

Scratching shod, otherwise it is very liable to acquire the feather-picking habit. As a cock, it is a good layer, but its egg is not quite so large. A distinct advantage possessed by the White Leghorn over the majority of breeds is its resistance to the feather-picking habit. It is also to be commended on the ground of economy, a point which, very often, is lost sight of in discussing the relative values of different breeds.

How to Cure the Gapes.

This is a disease in which young chickens are particularly subject. It is caused by the presence of worms in the windpipe, and the chief symptom is a rattling sound when the bird breathes. The only way to effect a cure is to remove the worms, which may be done by means of a strip of lint or a piece of gauze. The lint should be soaked in a solution of carbolic acid, and the gauze should be soaked in a solution of iodine. The lint should be placed in the bird's mouth, and the gauze should be placed in the bird's mouth. The lint should be soaked in a solution of carbolic acid, and the gauze should be soaked in a solution of iodine. The lint should be placed in the bird's mouth, and the gauze should be placed in the bird's mouth.

Blood Spots in Eggs.

Spots of blood in eggs are found in eggs and are generally caused by a small blood vessel being ruptured during the process of formation. A good remedy is to use a solution of iodine. The iodine should be soaked in a solution of iodine. The lint should be placed in the bird's mouth, and the gauze should be placed in the bird's mouth.

CYCLING.

Answers to Correspondents. The Olympic Games. British cyclists have every reason to be satisfied at the result of the cycling events at the Olympic Games, for all the events except one stand to our credit. They have not been, by any means, barren victories, for all the events were most hotly contested, and the foreign representative fowls were well worth putting with, but it must not be forgotten that on the Continent, at the rate, as soon as a rider becomes really first-class he turns professional, and these races are strictly confined to amateurs. Things are the other way about with us, as almost all our races are for amateurs, and there is little or no chance for a professional in England. Had the Olympic Games included professional cycling events, we should probably not have done so well.

A Record Cycle.

Here is a record for the life of a cycle belonging to a reader of "The People." He says: "I bought my bicycle in 1895. It has run 30,000 miles on two inner tubes, although I cannot count the outer tube. It was originally a cushion-tired machine, but I had it converted into a pneumatic-tired one. During the time it has been in my possession it has had two new handlebars, two saddles, four brakes, three sprocket wheels, four wheels, three chains, one crank two other pins, and two front axles." The correspondent, who appears to be an experienced rider, adds as a practical tip that many times when a pump is cast aside as useless if the washer is reversed it will act practically as well as a new pump.

New Type.

A new, and, of course, unpuncturable tyre has been invented for motorists, and it is claimed that they are nearly as resilient as air. The Bath and Bath ride will probably take place in September, and it is claimed that the Bath and Bath ride will probably take place in September, and it is claimed that the Bath and Bath ride will probably take place in September.

Motor Cycle Reliability.

The "end to end" run was a genuine success, on which the Auto-Cycle Union deserve hearty congratulations. Just as the 2,000 miles trial of motor-cars was a very severe ordeal, so the 2,000 miles trial of motor-cycles was a very severe ordeal. A Good Entry.

Quite a good entry—64 motor-cycles—had been received, but it was rather difficult to get the machines into the list. As a matter of fact, only one such machine started, Mr. Randle driving a 10-h.p. Lagonda. The rest of the machines were either broken down or did not start. As a matter of fact, only one such machine started, Mr. Randle driving a 10-h.p. Lagonda. Many Successes.

Of the 58 who set out, no fewer than 48 finished within the six days allowed for the run. The Triumph machine, which was the only one to finish, was a very good machine. Troubles by the Way.

Of course there were troubles, but all of them were comparatively trivial, except in the case of one firm, whose three machines all broke their front forks. This is an instance of what the value of such a trial as this comes in. The firm in question turned out quite a nice bit of work, but the front forks were broken, and the machine was not able to finish. THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT SHEPHERD'S BUSH.

quite anticipated a big crowd this with so many tit-bits on the card. Americans started off in fine style, the cherokees can call them "Ra, ra, ra," were like the ragdolls, always in the lead.

The competitors' stand was a place of out-crowding, indeed, you were out of the winning crowd, and when the 100 metres swim the keynote of the afternoon was struck. The American, who had been in the lead since the time when Joey Nuttall in the 1,000 Yards Championship at Bath had been seen nothing to the American.

The 100 metres showed Morton, who was in the lead, and the crowd was high. No one, with the exception of Walker, the recent winner, had any money on the wrong horse. The crowd was in the lead, and the crowd was in the lead.

CONCLUSION OF THE STADIUM EVENTS.

TAYLOR WINS THREE GOLD MEDALS.

YANKEES IN THE SULKS.

The Stadium and, to the majority of people, most important events in connection with the Olympic Games were concluded in glorious weather. The programme of competitive events was longer than had originally been intended, owing mainly to the postponing of part of the Wrestling and the running of course, and the 100 metres swim, which was held on the 24th.

Although the latter event was fixed for as early as midday, and would, it was rumoured, provide a walk over for the British, there was a good crowd of spectators present. Rumour proved to be correct, for the two Americans, Robbins and Taylor, did not start (Carroll, who was in the lead, was disqualified for fouling Halswelle, on Thursday, when the race was declared void), and Halswelle ran over by himself in the good time of 1:50.2.

On the track to greet the Scot, who was loudly cheered.

Apart from his other interest in the 100 metres, Taylor, who had won the world record, created a new world record, and the afternoon portion of the programme was witnessed by about 50,000 spectators.

"THE PEOPLE" MIXTURE.

PARAGRAPHS FROM ALL PARTS.

In London 2,328 births and 557 deaths were registered last week. The former were 100 and the latter 213 below the average.

The 557 deaths included 32 from measles, 6 from scarlet fever, 8 from diphtheria, 16 from whooping-cough, 4 from enteric fever, and 36 from diarrhoea, but not one death from small-pox or typhus.

Different forms of violence caused 33 deaths, of which 7 were cases of homicide and 26 due to accident or negligence.

In Greater London 3,578 and 1,353 deaths were registered. Allowing for the increase in population, these numbers are 229 and 236 below the respective averages in the corresponding weeks of the previous five years.

The deaths registered last week in 76 great towns of England and Wales corresponded to an annual rate of 11.1 per 1,000 of their aggregate population, which is estimated at 16,248,922 persons in the middle of this year. In the preceding three weeks the rates had been 11.8, 11.8, and 11.6.

There are now 385,000 people in receipt of State relief in India.

In another column the G.E. Ry. Co. announce facilities which are available for the transit from all parts of the Eastern Counties to London of small quantities of farm and market garden produce.

At a meeting of the London Housekeepers' Union, it was resolved to apply for an injunction against the L.C.C. to restrain that body from entering in their tramway yards at New Cross without statutory powers.

FEMININE EXCUSES.
In the Salford Police Court one woman excused her drunkenness on the ground that she had been to a wedding; and another woman, who had also been intoxicated, pleaded that she had been to a funeral.

"MIXED" TEACHING.
Clapham parents have forwarded a protest against the decision of the Education Committee of the L.C.C. to convert the Wurttemberg-st. school into a "mixed" school at which boys and girls will be taught together.

lost something of their former power, owing to the indifferent light cut by the lights in most of the rooms with their windows in most of the recent seasons. One is inclined to attach more importance to the encounters in which north country teams engage, but of quite as much interest nowadays are the races of the "North" with Middlesex and Kent, especially, and the other day ruined a happy meeting between Middlesex and Surrey at Lord's, but fortune was more kind to the struggle in which Kent opposed Surrey at Epsom last week. For quite a number of years, Surrey has been against other counties, nearly always came to grief when they measured their strength against Kent. At the Oval Surrey might prove their neighbours very hard. But they not make a bad thing of it and only close in the following year by one wicket through Crawford missing a catch when the issue hung in the balance. On Kent grounds, however, Surrey rarely did themselves justice and until last summer, when, at Kingston, Surrey had not overcome the mighty county for nine years.

The M.C.C. having received the quotation from a sufficient number of counties have duly summoned a meeting of the Advisory Committee, to be held at Lord's on Wednesday afternoon. As the representatives have been asked to come to the meeting armed with the definite views of the committees it may be assumed that the question of inviting the Australians here next season will be settled one way or the other. In the event, however, of the voting being close, the matter might be left for further consideration. The result of the meeting will be waited for with anxious interest. Since the publication of Mr. Jackson's now famous letter, and the final rejection by the Australian Board of Control of the Triangular Scheme, things have undergone a striking change. We know that there is a far stronger feeling in favour of the Australians than the English within advocates of the Triangular Tournament has led us to suppose. Lancashire, Nottingham, Gloucestershire, and Derbyshire united in wishing that the Australians should be invited, and it remains to be seen whether they find enough supporters to make it so. One point that has been somewhat obscured has now been brought to the surface. The Essex committee say last November they passed a resolution approving a visit from the Australians in 1909, and that in taking their present action they are confirming their previous view. It was sure that the county would be sound on the subject of the Australian tour before Mr. Bailey's project was broached, and I always understood that they were unanimous in wishing the tour to come off. This brings into the argument that no formal invitation had been sent to Australia when Mr. Bailey's letter appeared, the papers amounting to nothing. The fact of the visit having been approved will be a strong point in the case for the Australian friends on Wednesday. Some of the counties may, of course, wish to punish the Australians for declining to accept the Triangular Scheme, but I hope sound counsel will prevail and all friction be avoided. When all is said and done the Australians were entitled to form their own opinion of the project, which, whatever the result, was a fair and honest experiment. In the eyes of the writers one might think the Australians were bound to do the scheme, whether they liked it or not.

MIDDLESEX v. LANCASHIRE
LANCASHIRE beaten by 150.
 Yesterday's cricket at Lord's was distinguished by an early appointment, Middlesex winning by 150 runs, and the match coming to a tamely early conclusion. On Friday evening Middlesex were 150 runs ahead, but the Lancashire batsmen had left off in a very strong position, and the Lancashire bowlers had been able to get 150 runs ahead, with three wickets to fall in their second innings. In these days, when such great things are done in the last innings, it is not necessary to be 150 runs ahead. The Lancashire batsmen who had watched the play for two days felt that Middlesex had done the game in their hands. The central part of Lord's ground is Middlesex's evergreen, and the Lancashire batsmen at the end of July the turf inevitably becomes somewhat worn. The pitch for this particular wicket was better than old wickets, but the Lancashire batsmen were not in the best of form. It rather annoyed them. It lasted fairly long.

well, but when, after the Middlesex innings had closed for 335, Lancashire went in, they were much heavier than it looked. Any hopes of victory that Northern players may have entertained were dashed by the bowling of Tyldesley and MacLaren, and neither of those great batsmen made a local stay. Tyldesley.

High noon in the matter. The bowling, made a very plucky effort and the new batsman, Whitehead, hit up 21 runs out of 30, and was out at 50. The innings was reached at half-past three, the innings finishing for 148. Hornby, who had wrenched his knee on Friday afternoon, was out of the match, and if there had been a chance of winning or saving the match, but as it was Lancashire batted one man short. ESSEX v. DERBYSHIRE

First Win for Essex.

Amidst a scene of enthusiasm gained a great victory at Leyton last day six wickets. It had been fought from the start with varied fortunes that left the game in a position at the conclusion of the first day for which Essex had been given 200 runs. Ernest Needham, the top of two hundreds in the match, has most to do with the visitors making an even struggle. The remainder men proved equal to the task and the Essex side, under the leadership of the captain, had a good day's play.

by good resolute batting. Robinson got a couple of fours from upplish strokes, and past cover point off Bracey, who relieved Warren, but otherwise this batting was not so good as that carried the total to 83 at lunch time.
A catch by Humphries, Robinson got to Warren, disposed of, standing at 89. In 50 minutes, and placed the sides on an equality. At least so it seemed, but as a matter of fact this ended Derbyshire's success for and his captain hit off the remaining runs, and won a good victory for Essex as has been seen on the Leyton ground for a long time. The young players of 49, 44, and 41, in the time, gave a sample of his quality by hitting Warren for five, all good strokes in front of-or equal with-the wicket. A set of a favourite hearty applause as he did the bulk of the scoring. By playing forward, he often got the ball away from the bats though the most at point by the batsmen. G. Wright, he scarcely may mistake a in 90 minutes. He had then caught McInaney, and at the tea interval was due to his captain's 49. It was a plain sailing after the first excitement, but McInaney was well equipped for all risks; and most of the runs still went to his partner under the satisfaction of making the winning hit fell to the captain, who had then contributed even more than Freeman, dashing hitting to the success of the side. Freeman hit fourteen runs, but that marked his last stroke, as he observed this Chris McGay v. batting three hours, and both had a rolling exception at the close of the strenuous struggle. SUSSEX v. WORCESTERSHIRE

Worcestershire beaten by 10 wickets.

Worcestershire suffered a severe defeat at Brighton yesterday, Sussex being victorious by 10 wickets. In fact, the total of 530, they had on Friday, was a record for the county. The eight wickets for 187, and the 100 runs for 100, were admirably for almost two hours. Following on, 304 for 10, Worcestershire lost three good batsmen for 20, 20, and 20, by the bowler, G. B. Foster. Foster materially improved the appearance of the team, and the hour and a half they added 157 runs for 10 wickets, and then bowled eleven 4's—mostly drives and cuts—run later G. B. Foster also took a wicket for 10, and the team, after this, after a 100 and three-quarters, offered any serious resistance, and Sussex were left with only 10 runs to win, after the same of 10 wickets. Kent v. Surrey.
Vineyard and Coa worked a wide race.
Surrey beaten by 205.
Century by Hebbe.
Surrey for quite a number of years pre-have failed to overcome Kent on a Ken-ish ground, and their ill-considered victory by 205 runs. On Kentish soil Surrey not only failed to establish a strong position, but they were unable they allow it to slip from their grasp.

Two years ago, on the Ken-field they secured a narrow and hardly won victory by 111 runs, and then the end went to pieces so badly believe and Mason that they lost by runs. Last season they were beaten for their failure; but still the should not, even on a soft pitch, but their most inconsistent players. For of portunity when they got to within 61 feet of their opponents' total for the loss of one of the two batsmen. The pitch, though, was not so true on Friday, and everything suggested Surrey obtaining a handsome lead in the first innings. Once again, however, the Surrey batsmen were not to be taken in by quite unworthy of a side with any pretensions to championship for 1900. Certainly, Mason and Byrnie bowled with skill and judgment, but the Surrey bowlers were not quite sufficient to account for eight batsmen going out in less than an hour and a half for 60 runs. It was their

FURIOUS DISPLAY

Surrey had, very properly, a big price to pay. Where they had cut such a wide figure, the Kent men were not so successful. In the first run-out, though the visitors certainly worked natively on the 200, Kent for the loss of five batsmen in a total of 270 runs. The Kent batsmen, however, they had no cause for anxiety. They needed, of course, a few more runs before they could reasonably declare, but the defeat which threatened them was not as earlier had suffered into this air.

The runs required they proceeded to make in very light-hearted fashion. Kent, who had 71 runs in their credit, were taken to the name of Mason did not always time the ball properly, but he brought off some delightful strokes at intervals, and made a brilliant form. Twenty minutes' cricket produced 46 runs, then a neat catch by Tom Hayward, down at point, brought the innings to a close. The total had added 108 to the score. Everybody was glad to see the

WATKINS IN DIFFICULTIES
The resumption of the game, which took place in glorious weather, was a place in the hands of nearly 10,000 people, but with it some startling cricket. Macmillan's first over sending back Hobbs, and in his second clean bowling Hobbs for the second time. The latter was then sent down against Lister, who finite variety of resource has rarely been better illustrated. An expert batsman, of whom it is not too much to say that he is a good batsman, but still Hobbs maintains form. So long as Dalmore remains Surrey's prospects were not quite so good, but the substitution of Woolley for Dalmore has put Hobbs back in the young professional, in the course of a few overs, sending back Dalmore and Spring. When eight wickets had fallen Knox displayed a most opposition. Hobbs was then sent down.

COMPLETES HIS HUNDRED
Indeed, these two batsmen played together from before eleven o'clock till past midnight, when Hobbs was masterly batting for three hours and half Hobbs was leg before, and at mid-on disposing of Strudwick.
